SUBJECT: Personal Body Armor

In late 1993 the Fort Wayne Police Department formed a body armor committee (7 officers; 1 civilian from the FOP Women's Auxillary) to establish guidelines with regard to the purchase and wearing of body armor by all officers of the Fort Wayne Police Department.

At the present time, officers on the committee are trying different armor to test for quality and wearability. In meeting with different distributors regarding the life of the armor, manufacturer's estimate that the kevlar armor, with continuous wear and without reconditioning, recommend replacement (product liability dictates) after 5 years. With the new spectra fiber manufacturer estimates on the armor life is 7-10 years, without reconditioning. Some manufacturers and distributors offer a lease, rebuild and/or a buy back programs.

We had a telephone conversation with Tom Kavouras of Impact Technologies, Inc. His company offers a care and maintenance process that guarantees body armor will last 20 years if professionally cleaned by them (they are the only company in the world) every three years. They provide a reconditioning/cleaning service with non-toxic water base chemicals which will remove the mold and acid that attack the vest material. For 300 vests the cost would be $140/vest.

The department realizes this is a large expense request. We are making every effort to insure the most economical and highest quality product will be purchased for the safety of our officers.

SUMMARY:

This addition to both the Communications and Police Departments would benefit all involved with faster retrievals of vital information. Our computer requests have been increasing each year with the increase in Police dispatches and concentrated patrols by projects such as the CAN team.

This system price would amortize the cost of adding additional staff in just over three years at current salaries. Obvious benefits are no pay increase, sick time, vacation, etc.

Most Police agencies have seen a marked increase in recovery of vehicles and wanted persons. Some have seen a 240% increase in computer traffic alone! The ease of retrieval and the speed of the data response encourages the Officers' participation.

The laptops will also access these systems and be compatible for the Police Department to enter written reports at the scene or access previous data file history. This will enable both Divisions of Public Safety to become more efficient with a speedier access to available data bases.
